

---

Tip of the Week - January 30

Posted by michelle.house - 2008/01/30 12:51

---

With all the lovely rain I've been clearing out the weeds and can see more room in my gardens for some more plants. While planning my trip to the local nursery I had a look around and saw that they're were some plants that I could "separate". Well - I managed to get 15 liriop clusters; at $8.95 a pop, I saved myself a whopping $134.25!! Have a look around your garden before you go shopping and see what value you can get out of yours! Don't forget to share your tips!

=====

Re:Tip of the Week - January 30

Posted by Sophie - 2008/01/30 13:27

---

Another way to build up your garden on a budget is to cut cuttings from friends, family, neighbours - this is another great way of saving money!

=====

Re:Tip of the Week - January 30

Posted by Sophie - 2008/01/30 13:31

---

Saving money in the garden - budget ideas

This page from ninemsn has great explanation on what you can take as a cutting and how to propagate them.

<http://aww.ninemsn.com.au/article.aspx?id=116367>

=====